SCREAM FOR ICE CREAM.

Your job is to take it back.

THE MOMENT WE MISSED

It was never about the ice cream.

Blinkit cracked something in the last two days that nobody else in Indian quick commerce had. Users literally scream into their phone and a tub of ice cream shows up at the door. Twitter exploded. Reels piled in. Every order became a screenshot. Every screenshot became reach.

What Blinkit found is not a feature. It is a brand moment: a ten-minute window where delivery stops being a utility and starts being theatre. We have spent two years winning on speed. Speed alone does not get screenshot.

FOR FIRST-TIME READERS

Read this if you missed the news.

Zepto is an Indian quick-commerce app: groceries, snacks, and ice cream in ten minutes. Blinkit is our largest rival, same model.

In the last two days, Blinkit launched Scream for Ice Cream in a handful of metros. Users literally screamed into the app and a tub showed up at the door. The feature is still city-restricted.

But the videos exploded on X, Reels, and Reddit. Users in cities without the rollout are discovering Blinkit through the trending content. The buzz has lapped the rollout.

02

THE PROBLEM, STATED

Zepto wins on speed. We lose on personality. In ice cream, the most performative category in quick commerce, Blinkit just took the brand moment. We need a Zepto-native delivery moment that takes the crown back, ships before peak summer demand, and runs inside our ten-minute SLA.

WHO WE ARE BUILDING FOR AANYA.

TWENTY FOUR.
MUMBAI.

4×

ice cream orders per month, on average

78%

of those orders fire after 9 PM

3 friends

she told about Blinkit's Scream within 48 hours of trying it

Aanya has not deleted Zepto. But Zepto is her speed app, not her fun app. That is the gap. She will post about an app moment, but only if it is worth posting.

04

WHAT "GOOD" LOOKS LIKE

Five tests for v1.

01

A screenshot of the feature on X is instantly recognised as Zepto. No logo needed.

02

Drives a measurable spike in organic mentions across X, Reels, and Reddit India in launch week.

03

Lifts ice cream category orders by 15%+ in launch month, sustained four weeks.

04

Pulls back at least 30% of users who tried Blinkit's Scream in the prior 90 days.

05

The mechanic is reusable. It works for biscuits, chocolate, anything impulse. Not just ice cream.

05

A PROVOCATION

Blinkit owns the scream.
We own
the ten minutes.

What does the wait between “I want ice cream” and “the doorbell rang” look like when Zepto turns it into theatre? The ten-minute window is the part of the journey we already own outright. It is also the part Blinkit cannot copy without breaking their own promise. That is the canvas.

06

BOUNDARIES

What you must respect. What you cannot ship.

CONSTRAINTS

- 01 The 10-minute SLA is locked.
- 02 Ships inside the existing app. No separate apk.
- 03 Launch window: before peak summer demand.
- 04 Branding reads as Zepto, not a sub-brand.
- 05 No operations or warehouse changes required.

OUT OF SCOPE (V1)

- 01 Loyalty programs or product bundles.
- 02 Locked partnerships with a single ice cream label.
- 03 AR or VR gimmicks.
- 04 Anything that requires an SLA exception.
- 05 Anything that demands a delivery model change.

THE BRIEF, IN ONE LINE

Make Zepto the brand you scream for,
not the brand you scream into.

YOUR ASSIGNMENT

One week. Build the moment.

This brief defines the problem. The solution is yours. You decide the mechanic, the surface, the copy, the visual treatment. You also do the homework Zepto would expect you to do before you start designing.

WHAT TO DELIVER

A working prototype, web or mobile, your choice.

A one-page strategy memo. Your mechanic, and why it is uniquely Zepto.

A 30-second screen recording of the user moment, landscape orientation.

FIND ON YOUR OWN

Zepto's brand system: colour, type, spacing, voice, microcopy patterns. Open the live app. Pull the tokens.

Comparable category data. Use proxies if you do not have insider numbers.

The shape of Blinkit's Scream campaign. Study what went viral, and why.

HOW YOU ARE JUDGED

Does a screenshot of your work read as Zepto without the logo?

Is the mechanic something a real user would actually share?

Would it ship inside the 10-minute SLA without changing ops?

Is your one-page memo opinionated, or hedged?
